

David Nassi

Biography :

David Nassi entered the family business as a 3rd generation gem dealer. After an apprenticeship with one of the finest lapidaries in the world, David began cutting and polishing some of the most important stones in circulation. During this time he also received his Graduate Gemmologist from G.I.A., and Fellow from Gemological Association of Great Britain to move the business forward, and founded 100% Natural, LTD. as a way of offering superb untreated gemstones to fill a niche in the market,

David has worked on some incredible material in his years of lapidary artistry, including several record-breaking stones at the largest auction houses around the world. Work to which he has contributed has been featured at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City and The Smithsonian Museum in Washington D.C., where an extremely rare jewel which he cut is permanently displayed. Now boasting over 20 years of experience in the gem industry, this multihyphenate has become a regular at the Spectrum Awards winner's circle, most recently winning the honor of Best in Show two years in a row, among many other accolades over the last decade.
