

Gislain Aucremanne

Biography :

Gislain Aucremanne has worked for more than 15 years in major cultural institutions and in the world of jewelry, in France and abroad. Educated at the Ecole du Louvre, he has collaborated with numerous museums in Paris and worldwide on their cultural program, their exhibitions and the transmission of Art knowledge to various audiences.

His experiences, for instance at the MAD jewelry's gallery in Paris, but also on major heritage exhibitions have made him an expert in the field of jewelry history.

In 2012, he joined L'ECOLE, School of Jewelry Arts – supported by Van Cleef & Arpels, took afterwards the charge of the Talks development, in-person or online, in Paris and abroad Hong Kong, New York, Tokyo, Dubai, London, Geneva, Milan...). He has also contributed to jewelry education through many other projects: exhibitions, acquisition of antique pieces, writing of articles, training, videos and podcasts...

He is today an independent jewelry historian, collaborating on projects and events, particularly in the context of lectures, cultural exhibitions or also on various topics related to jewelry heritage.
